Increase

COVERNOR McMath in a Little Rock statement yesterday cleared up any uncertainty as to how he stands on the proposal to relieve the school financial crisis by increasing the state sales tax rate. He's against it.

He's against it because, as he's quoted as saying in a private con-versation (published in Little Rock this morning): "It's mighty hard to increase a tax on the rich man, but a lot easier to increase a tax on the poor man." Which is the view this newspaper takes also.

We're no soak-the-rich propagandist. The fact is, real and personal property interests were spared a crushing increase in the taxation load when, as we emerged from the depression of the 1930s and the schools had to have help, the increase was put in the form of a state sales tax,

The Hall sales tax law still stands at the rate of 2 per cent-and there at has to remain. Arkansas can not afford ever to raise this direct tax upon the food and clothing that everyone has to buy, rich and poor

Of other possible sources of revenue it will be argued that no mat-ter how a tax is levied it is paid by the ultimate consumer of goods or user of services, regardless. And this is true-with one exception, The exception is where government steps in and takes over an rexisting private business and oprates it for the profit of the public rather than for individual own- ashamed" when the session ers. Thus, the City of Hope, which over. founded and still operates today a municipal water & light plant, collects taxation from its people that is virtually no taxation at all because government is enjoying the profit that normally goes to pri-

Such a course is open today to the Arkansas state government. It could seize the private liquor industry, both retail and wholesale, operate it as a state-owned dispensary system - and collect an addittonat 10 million dollars a year for the schools or other purposes.

I advocate that course. It is a course already taken by such states as Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia, in the South - and the largest and richest states of the North. It follows, therefore, that the procedure is wise, honorableyand necessary.

What the President said, briefly, was this: manpower problems should be solved on a voluntary basis; if they're not, the govern-ment will step in with controls to solve them by compulsion.

Through computation the government could tell an employer what to do about hiring or firing or the number of employes he could have and the government could freeze workers in their jobs or shift them

Such power would certainly require approval of congress through passage of a special law which might have any one of a number of names, like "national service"
